HARROWING EXPERIENCE OF AN OLD COLIMA RESIDENT.

Michael Callan, 68 years of age, a resident of Colima, is in the Red Cross Guild Hospital at San Mateo, suffering from the effects of exposure and a broken leg. He was discovered Tuesday by his son, J. Callan, a prominent rancher, who had been searching for his father since last Friday.

Last Thursday evening Michael Callan went to Baden to visit friends. He left there before the evening was far advanced to walk as far as the electric car tracks, where he could catch a car home. On the way he fell from a culvert and broke his leg. Unable to move, the old man lay there without food or water until Saturday evening, when for the first time in two days and nights he was seen by a passerby. The latter, whose name is unknown, carried the old man to the tracks, put him on a car and told the conductor to see that he was taken to a hospital in San Mateo.

Meanwhile Callan's son and other relatives had been scouring the country in vain for the missing man. They had almost given up hope Tuesday when Jack Callan learned from Coleman, Mrs. C. Lovie, Mrs. J. that an old man had been carried to the hospital. He immediately went to that institution and found his father.

In spite of the severe exposure, the broken limb and his age, Callan is reported to be recovering. When first taken to the hospital he was unconscious, and was barely able to speak when his son arrived, but the doctors hold out hope that he will be none the worse after a few weeks in bed.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER

D. E. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

NOW UP TO THE PEOPLE.

Before another issue of the Times-Gazette the people of the State of California—or at least such of them as do their duty as citizens of the great commonwealth—will have determined by their votes the principles and character of men by which for a term they are to be governed. That a larger proportionate number of the voters will do their duty than is usual, there is every reason to believe. The fact that there has been a larger registration of voters than is usual upon what is termed an "off year" may be taken as an index of a strong interest upon the part of the individual voter, and a determination of the citizens to have a hand in the choice of the public officials. This is due probably to several causes, the chief among which is the fact that the questions at issue are not merely theoretical, but practical to the highest degree and of close personal interest to every citizen.

In the next place the new method of making nominations has created a strong interest in the minds of the citizens generally. The tickets were not made up in conventions, where the few made the nominations for the many; every voter had his voice in naming the candidates. Every man on the Republican ticket was placed there by the vote of the constituency freely expressed, and those who placed the ticket in nomination should feel in honor bound to see to its election. For a Democrat to help to nominate a Republican ticket and then to cut that ticket at the polls is to say the least dishonorable.

Another and probable strong cause for the widespread interest is the method of the conduct of the campaign. While this has been called a quiet campaign it does not follow that it has been an apathetic one by any means. As a matter of fact it has been in many respects unusually active. While there have been few public meetings—with their noisy accompaniment of brass bands and processions, the individual voter has been sought out, whether he was to be found in the big cities or in the country hamlet or on the farm. No effort has been spared to hunt out the individual.

Hiram Johnson, the Republican nominee for governor has probably met personally more of the voters of the state than has any previous candidate for the office. He has gone into every section of the state and there made known to the people the great principles of purity in government and freedom from the shackles of corporate control for which he is contending. Undoubtedly no candidate has ever before met with a more enthusiastic reception from the people.

Similar methods have been pursued by the candidates for county offices. They are going straight to the people. Each individual has been given a personal opportunity to know the character of man for whom he is asked to vote.

So far as it is possible at this time to forecast results, there seems every reason to believe that the Republican ticket, both county and state, will be successful. Every nominee on the ticket is a man well qualified for the position for which he asks the suffrage of the people. Every member of the party has a hand in making the ticket, and no good reason has been shown why he should desert its banner.

If any one has a reason why Bell would make a better governor than Johnson they have failed to mention it so far.

The new telephones are putting in an appearance and the people are wearing a glad smile. No room to kick now.

While you are talking about the good of the county, what's the matter with patronizing home industry for a change.

Roy W. Cloud will receive the unanimous vote of the people of San Mateo county for Superintendent of Schools—and he deserves it.

Don't miss voting for Chamberlain for Treasurer just because you think he don't need votes. He is entitled to the compliment of every voter.

A vote for Judge Lennon for Justice of the District Court of Appeal, means a vote to reward integrity and ability in judicial office.

James Cronk, the Republican candidate for Constable, needs no introduction to the people of this township. Everybody knows his record.

No better man could be sent to the Assembly than Henry Ward Brown. He knows how to do things and has proven a friend to the people in the past.

Bob Chatham should receive a handsome majority for Sheriff. His past record is without flaw, and no one questions his ability to enforce the laws in the future.

It is about time to quit talking politics and get down to business. Let's finish up that shoe factory matter and get the building started before Christmas.

It is practically certain that W. H. Underhill will be reelected County Auditor by a big majority. His past record of efficiency is a sufficient guarantee for the future.

It is just as well that the Democrats made no nomination in opposition to H. O. Helmer for Recorder. No better man for the place could be found, and—well they couldn't beat him anyway.

FORM NO HASTY CONCLUSIONS.

The serious charges of bribery affecting not alone several of the public officials of San Mateo county but a well known and prominent business concern of San Francisco, which have been heralded broadcast by a San Francisco newspaper for more than a week past, must receive the closest investigation by the authorities of both San Mateo and San Francisco counties. Justice, both to the public and the accused, demands that the matter be probed to the very bottom.

If these men are guilty, if officials who have been trusted by the people of the county to transact their public business have proven recreant to the confidence imposed and have prostituted public interest to private gain, they are deserving of the severest punishment. If a leading business house has resorted to criminal methods in the prosecution of its business it is entitled to more than the contempt of the people.

Not only this, but the fair name of the county must be protected. The world must be made to understand that neither dishonesty in a public official nor reprehensible methods in a business concern will be tolerated by the people of San Mateo county.

At the same time the people should withhold their judgment until the facts have been judicially ascertained. This is but justice, especially in view of the fact that these charges have been made by a newspaper which has demonstrated in the past its readiness to besmirch the good name of this county, that has let no opportunity pass to impugn the motives of its officials. More especially is this true in view of the fact that these accusations come just upon the eve of the election from a source which has already been opposed to the political aspirations of the men accused.

While seemingly there are no strong grounds upon which to base the charges, it is hardly conceivable that men who have long enjoyed the esteem of their neighbors and are already possessed of a reasonable competency should be ready to expose themselves to the contempt of the people or to make themselves amenable to the severe penalties of the law for a comparatively insignificant gain. Nor does it seem probable that a firm of the wealth and long standing of the H. S. Crocker Company should resort to seriously criminal methods to dispose of a comparatively small bill of goods. And certainly if the charges be true, it must seem to the ordinary mind that this firm had more than a guilty knowledge of the transaction, for it is hardly conceivable that an ordinary salesman, simply working for the salary usually paid such positions should have been ready to pay from his own funds the amounts charged to have been used in completing these transactions.

This matter should be approached calmly and with a desire for equal justice, not for the formation of hasty conclusions. The good name of a man, be he high or low, is his most valuable possession. And we have no right to rob him of that possession upon the mere breath of suspicion or the accusation of an enemy. Certainly we have no right to bring misery upon a man and disgrace upon his family for mere purpose of political gain.

Let us then await calmly the developments of the proper judicial inquiry before holding these men and their loved ones up to scorn. This we would all ask for ourselves, and in all humanity should be willing to grant it to others.

THE SAME OLD METHODS.

By many of the friends of the district primary law it was hoped and predicted that it would at least have the effect of freeing our election contests from the mire of dirty politics. Even those who were not over warm in the support of the law admitted that it gave promise of at least this one beneficial result. On all sides it was with considerable confidence predicted that in the future our political contests were to be made in the open, that the days of the bushwhacker were at an end.

Unfortunately for the hopes of those who longed for the days of clean politics, the hoped for millennium has failed to materialize. While up to almost its close the campaign, in this county at least, has been conducted with apparent decency, the last days of the campaign have given unmistakable evidence that the methods of the mudslinger are still with us.

Just as the campaign is about to close, and probably when their author hoped it would be too late to direct public attention to his underhanded and despicable methods, the mails of the county are being flooded with anonymous circulars attempting to cast reflections upon the character and official integrity of two of the prominent candidates on the Republican ticket. That these circulars—which bear no signatures and are vouchered for by none—were prepared for circulation with every possible safeguard of secrecy is evidenced by the fact that they were plainly printed outside of the county. That no trick is too low for the author of these questionable documents is also made evident by the fact that an attempt is made to convey the impression that one of these documents bears the signatures of two citizens of the county, when in fact a careful reading will show that there is not the slightest evidence that the use of either in the manner indicated was authorized.

With the statements made in these anonymous circulars we shall not concern ourselves, nor do we consider it necessary. To the intelligent voter they require neither answer or refutation. The characters and personal and official integrity of the two men are too well established in San Mateo County, where both have long resided, to require defense at the hands of any person.

If these circulars were issued with the design of injuring these two men and aiding in the election of their opponents—as appears to be the case—their friends can rest assured that the opposite result will follow. The average American citizen admires a man who fights in the open—for the man who strikes in secret, who resorts to the methods of the assassin, they have nothing but contempt.

ABOUT OUR FINANCES.

The infamous circular whose author or authors had not the courage to sign should go unanswered only for the injustice done our county and its citizens. Had the author ordinary intelligence as he claims, others should have he would have seen the fallacy of his contentions.

He gives the solution of the trifle higher interest rate charged in the county than in Alameda when he says: San Francisco Banks will not loan here but do loan in Alameda county, and that some of our people deposit their savings in city banks.

The locking up of the county's money in San Francisco has even more contracted the supply, hence it is a matter of supply and demand that governs the rate. Since all the banks in the county are asking about the same interest no doubt there is justice in their rate. Savings banks in San Francisco would have little to do to explain to a prospective borrower that they would not loan for building purposes in San Mateo county but would in Alameda.

If the author of the unsigned circular will come forward with cheaper money no doubt he would be well patronized. The statement that $350,000 was in the hands of the county treasurer might be true. Part of this amount is deposited in at least five banks of the county which have put up the required bond and pay their required interest. The balance is locked up in a safe deposit vault in San Francisco, and this fact is known to all, hence the statement that the money is in a vault and untrue and was known to be so to the author of the circular.

The largest bank in the county could under the law, only accept $50,000, therefore every bank in the county—if they saw fit—could take out their full allotment. As the money might be needed, County Treasurer Chamberlain, who is fair minded, would not call on any one bank for what money he needed but part from the above, hence the illustration in the circular is silly, say the least.

We agree with the author that "with increased deposits the home banks could make more loans; more loans would mean more population and still more depositors and larger bank deposits made available for loans thus the endless chain of progress is forged link by link," but we cannot agree with the author that the locking up of the money in a safe deposit vault will in any way aid in bringing about the above. Mr. Chamberlain has faithfully served the people for a great many years and not a cent has ever been lost to the county. His integrity has never been questioned, this speaks volumes in his favor and when the votes are counted it will be shown that the voters of the county recognize in him a faithful public officer and will return him to office with his usual large majority.

LAST WORD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

When it comes to the close of a hard fought campaign there is a time to say the last word. A high minded man who respects his party and loves his country will be above saying that which appeals only to prejudice or passion, or which he knows is false in any particular. The Examiner by its cartoons is ringing all the changes on the threadbare subject of the $55,000 imaginary fee, which the brave young orator from Indiana charges Johnson with taking from J. Dalzell Brown for securing him an 18 months' sentence in San Quentin when he richly deserved an 18 years term there. To be sure if the Hoosier School master and the Examiner say Johnson got this enormous fee from funds Brown stole from his depositors, it must be true even if not a scrap of evidence is submitted in proof of this heinous charge. The Examiner frequently makes charges that are false, and keeps repeating them on the plan that a lie truthfully adhered to may finally be accepted as the truth. Charges of such magnitude unsupported by evidence are sure to lead to countercharges. The Republican charge Bell's man Friday (Hering) with seeking aid and comfort from Patrick Calhoun, and seem likely to prove he got it. Men are certainly to be judged largely by the character of their friends and supporters. We don't know of any class of men who have been won to Johnson's support that he must apologize for. On the other hand the only way for Bell to be elected is to win over those Johnson don't want. He must attract to his standard all the standard Republicans, all the pro-graft element of San Francisco and its hard and fast ally the tenderloin, all corrupt corporations, and all who can not get a promise of office or immunity from removal to matter how unorthodox. Those who must hold all progressive Democrats who will naturally go to Johnson. Such are his chances of success, and a man several sizes bigger than Bell could not succeed with such a handicap against him.

The platforms of the parties so much alike have been forgotten, and everything hinges on the personality of the candidates. In spite of the torrents of abuse rained on Johnson, in spite of the efforts made to belittle his work in the graft prosecution because he accepted a fee from Rudolph Spreckles for a part of it, in spite of the charge of dishonesty in taking a fee from J. Dalzell Brown for defending him in court, we believe the people by their votes will show Hiram Johnson has their confidence and respect.

In spite of the dirt kicked up there is a difference between these men as clearly marked as the difference between the parties. Republicanism is the soil for independence. One of the chief insurgent papers—the California Weekly, urges Republicans to vote for Bayley instead of Jordan for secretary of state, for Ravenscroft instead of Shannon for state printer, and for Judge Lawlor instead of Judge Melvin for the Supreme Bench and no doubt many voters will follow the advice. We should like to know of a Democratic paper advising its readers to vote even for a Republican candidate for Justice of the Peace. The party of conservatism don't do business that way. The differences between these men is this: Theodore Bell has splendid, honorable, praiseworthy ambitions for himself. Hiram Johnson for his state; Bell is splendidly polite, considerate, and tactful, Johnson is rash in his antagonisms and at every turning says things which make the hair of old politicians stand on end. Bell knows without being told where he can get the votes necessary to make him governor and that is from the ranks of organization Republicans whom he has so signally misled at the primaries, and nothing can force Mr. Bell to biff those standpat Republicans in the eye or smite them on the other cheek. If he gets elected he will remember those by whom he was elected, not to do anything dishonorable, but to make things as easy for them as he consistently can. Mr. Johnson is helping Mr. Bell to get and hold that element in the Republican party by standing, after the nomination for exactly what he stood for before the primary election and, if he wins in the election, it will be the aid of progressive Democratic votes. In spite of himself Theodore Bell is the conservative candidate in this campaign. By the logic of the situation, by temperament, by choice, by a splendid enthusiasm for his state Hiram Johnson is the progressive candidate. Not since Starr King has California witnessed such a campaign as he is making, and not since Starr King's time has there been such need for just such a man to perform just such a service.

Fine men, Bell and Johnson, honorable to the state that produced them, but Hiram Johnson is nevertheless the man of the hour, the man who maintains a similar relation to this commonwealth that Theodore Roosevelt does to the nation, a man who forgets self in zeal for his cause.

There is no subject that quite so much concerns Redwood and its vicinity as better facilities for receiving freight by water. If this matter had all along received proper attention from our people, Redwood city would undoubtedly be the largest and best town between San Francisco and San Jose. While the people can do much by being liberal toward industry manufacturing enterprise to locate here, yet the greatest inducement would be an early and certain connection with deep water. This will be gained only through the help of U. S. Government. Years ago a Democrat secured an appropriation when Cleveland was president, some good work was done. Another appropriation was made. In fact was imperative, and $12,000 was secured by Congressman Hayes from the last Congress, and with that sum the creek can be straightened and cleaned out. Now gratefulness will hardly lead us to vote for his opponent. When a man shows ability in his work and faithfulness to his constituents, it is hardly the time to ask for his seat, and to give it to a man who had done nothing for us, and can do nothing no matter whether his party wins or loses the next House of Representatives at Washington. The sensible thing is to vote for E. A. Hayes. Those who do so will have no reason to regret it.

H. W. Lampkin well deserves election to the office of Justice of the Peace at the hands of the people of the Third township. He is a young man who has pushed himself to the front by his personal effort and integrity of purpose.

REMINISCENCES OF OUR PIONEER DAYS

Cleanings From the Records Left By Men Who Laid the Foundation of Our County.

As late as 1876 to question of a permanent water supply for Redwood City was still an unsettled problem, although the subject has been discussed repeatedly since the incorporation of the town and some definite action urged upon the trustees at frequent intervals. In April of that year the subject was again brought before the people by the proposal of a definite plan. This was to bring a supply of water to the town from the creek back to the Haves farm. To get the data a preliminary survey was made to determine the amount of land required, the elevation to be secured and the dam required to control the water as well as the possible supply to be obtained from that source. It was found that a supply for present needs could be obtained at an elevation of something like 200 feet above the town, and that a reservoir could be built to conserve the winter floods. It was estimated that the cost of the work would be about $25,000. While all admitted the necessity of a water supply, the suggestion met with considerable opposition, the objection being to the idea of bonding the town for the necessary money for the enterprise, at the same time the proposition was being pushed and plans made to submit the bond issue to the people.

Here is a little story from the columns of the Times and Gazette of April 8th, 1876, that may interest some of the boys of today, as showing that disobedience does not always result in seriously injurious consequences: "Some of the youngsters attending the school at Woodside were in the habit of playing ball near the house of a neighbor, but as they annoyed the good people living there by the knocking of the ball into the garden now and then and the going in to get it, and occasionally breaking a pane of glass they were forbidden to play there. But one day last week they ventured to try another game at the same place, and had not been at play long before the ball had bounded into the garden again. One of the big boys had the courage to go after it, and as he got near the house he found one of the young children of the family lying in a trough of water where it had fallen in head foremost and was unable to get out again. The boy at once took the child out and gave the alarm. The child was carried into the house and was at first thought to be dead, but after some considerable effort was resuscitated. It would doubtless have drowned had not the boy accidentally discovered it at the time he did, as a result of the ball game. The child was one of William McKean's family."

On the 30th of March, 1876, Chas. Knights, the 8-year old son of Thos. Knights, by a piece of cool headed bravery and foresight saved a lot of valuable property for the school and the town. The boy arrived at the school house rather early, and as he reached the place found the building on fire. As it was a rather flimsy wooden structure it burned rapidly, and the boy realized that it would be impossible to alarm the neighbors in time to do any good. In his dilemma he determined to do what lay in his power to save the property of his schoolmates and teachers. Break in the front door and all by himself commenced the removal of what he considered the most valuable articles. First he saved the school clock, to do which he was compelled to pile up the loose furniture to enable him to detach the clock from the wall. Then he saved the large dictionary, which he supposed was the most valuable of the books though he hardly comprehended its use. Although by this time the fire was burning fiercely and parts of the rear of the building was falling in, he went to work to empty the desks of the scholars of the school which had been left over night. In spite of the fact that he was nearly suffocated with smoke and that the heat had badly scorched his face he stayed with the task until every desk was empty. Pretty good for a kid of that age.

Early in the spring of 1876 the members of the Episcopal faith of Belmont started the erection of a church at that place. The building was not a large one, occupying a ground space of but 20 by 30 feet, with a wing, and calculated to seat about 150 people. And here is another birth notice: "Born in Redwood City, April 30th, 1876, to the wife of John Christ, a son."

Both candidates for Governor in the present campaign are vouched for as being good men and steadfast friends of the people. But putting the pictures of these two candidates side by side, we much prefer the homely but sincere and earnest face of Hiram Johnson to the dudlike and rather juvenile and characterless face of Theodore Bell. If we are any judge of human nature through physiognomy, of the two, Johnson is the man for the people to tie in this present political emergency.—Mountain Echo.

While it is generally good policy to retain a faithful and competent public official, this is especially true of the office of County Auditor. Not only does the proper conduct of the office require ability of an exceptional character, but its duties are such that their perfect understanding requires a practical apprenticeship. The Auditor most of necessity be familiar with every department of the business of the county, and informed as to its methods of conduct.

CURRY OUT FOR JOHNSON

One of the most significant pieces of political news since the primary election is an authorized interview with Charles F. Curry, Secretary of State, who asks his many thousands of followers in California to support the cause of Hiram W. Johnson and give to his candidacy the loyalty and allegiance which rewarded Curry with such a remarkable vote at the primary polls. Weeks ago, Curry assured Johnson and the entire Republican ticket of his hearty endorsement. This was accepted by many Curry organizations as instructions to them to wheel behind Johnson and the Republican ticket for the final contest. That emphasis may be given his original statement, Curry now asks all his supporters to labor with enthusiasm in behalf of the Republican standard-bearer.

Curry asks that those who voted to make him the Republican nominee should now give Johnson the same allegiance and fidelity, the same enthusiasm and support that won for Curry such a notable public recognition. In his authorized interview, Curry says:

"Hiram Johnson should be the next Governor of California. As a Republican he represents principles and policies, which, experience has proved, are the best for the progress and prosperity of the State. In his campaign he has my hearty and earnest support and I hope that every man who voted for me at the primary election will cast his ballot for him at the November polls.

"He stands for decency in public life and for constructive energy in governmental affairs. He is emphatically committed to every measure which will destroy a notorious and dominating railroad influence in legislative affairs of the State. I believe that those who accepted my position in the primary will now contribute to the vote that is to make him the Governor of the State.

"To the many thousands of citizens who honored me with their suffrages on August 16, I am deeply grateful, and I am confident that they are convinced of my honesty of purpose when I assure them that Johnson deserves from them what they gave to me—an active and organized effort to accomplish his election. The Republicans of California owe it to themselves and to the primary of their party in this State to elect Johnson Governor.

"In asking those who wished to see me the nominee for Governor to vote for Johnson, I do so because he fought a fair fight for the prize, because he stands absolutely pledged to free California from dangerous and unhealthy influences and because his career demonstrates absolutely his ability to conduct the high affairs of State."

Johnson's Message to Progressive Democrats

One of the arguments which has won to the standard of Hiram W. Johnson, Republican nominee for Governor, thousands of Democrats, has been his frank inquiry as to the means which any non-partisan in the State would take to accomplish a certain reform. He has asked:

"Regardless of partisanship, what course would you pursue if you desired to accomplish a reform within the government of the State? Would you go to the party of minority and of defeat, or would you go to the party which in California is the party of majority and progress? Would you go to the party of negotiation or denunciation or to the party which offers constructive reforms and has the power to bring them about?"

"It is a well known fact that the big majority of the holdover Senators who are now in office are Republican, and it is conceded by all who are in touch with the situation that the next Legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican. Now, if you had a reform which you desired to see brought about would you take it to the Democratic party, or to the Republican party which will be in control of the State government?"

"Is it not apparent to you that the one means of accomplishing any of the reforms contemplated within the State is through the Republican party?"

"I am not one of those partisans who arrogates to my party everything of virtue and imputes to the other party everything that is wrong. Even if we should accord to our Democratic opponents the same purpose and desires that inspire us, would it not still be apparent that, within the State of California the Democratic party would be able to accomplish nothing, and that defeat for the Republican party would not be a Democratic victory, but a victory for Herrin, the Southern Pacific and their allies? Their purpose would have been accomplished in the defeat of remedial legislation."

JOHNSON IS CONFIDENT.

I have completed practically a canvass of the two great valleys of the State, and I find them alive to our insurgency, our human Republicanism that political doctrine which shall exalt in the government of this land the human being above the mere dollar. Not only are Republicans enthusiastically aligned, but the better element of the Democratic party realize the hope of the nation to be in the great progressive Republican movement. We will reverse in the great valleys the majorities of four years ago, and there is scarcely a county in the State that will not be carried for the great cause.—HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

THE LOGICAL PLACE.

That San Francisco is the logical place to hold the world's fair in 1915 could not be denied by even the fairest minded people of New Orleans. There is no harbor in New Orleans; it is inland 100 miles, on a river, but no place to invite the navies of the world, and that will be half a show of itself. It is to celebrate the bringing ocean to ocean together, and with the finest harbor in the world San Francisco is entitled to it. Let's boost San Francisco and California—Acton Rooster.

About three years ago when we were first used in our family, when we lived in Buffalo, N. Y., their use in my case brought prompt and positive relief from pain and lameness in the back and other distressing difficulties caused by kidney trouble. To say the least, the results were gratifying. Another person in our household, who suffered from backache found Doan's Kidney Pills very effective and has used them off and on since then with good results."
